

Internal Pipeline Architecture for Save/restore Operation to Reduce Latency

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A system and method of processing multiple swap requests including receiving a first swap request in a pipeline and executing the first swap request. A second swap request is also received in the pipeline immediately following the first swap request. The first swap request and the second swap request are examined to determine if the first swap request and the second swap request swap a same register.